SOME RECENT BOOKS

MANAGEMENT IN FAMILY LIVING, by Paulena Nickell and J. M. Dorsey. Wiley, 1942.

"The authors have attempted first to show the place of management in homemaking, and second to develop methods of analyzing the management problems in family living. Factual information is included that seems essential for the intelligent management of certain resources; such for instance as the explanations of credit and life insurance, the tables on American family incomes and expenditures, and the material concerning the selection of houses and the methods of financing home ownership....The book is divided into six parts, each dealing with the managerial problems of the various aspects of family living," for example, the place of management in homemaking and the functions and characteristics of the effective home manager; analysis of management problems connected with time, energy, and income; the management problems involved in housing, feeding, and clothing the family, furnishing and equipping the home, operating the household, maintaining health, and providing recreation. From the preface. 321 N53

SOCIAL SKILLS IN CASE WORK, by Josephine Strode and P. R. Strode. Harper, 1942.

"Skill in human dealing is essential for effective work with people in social, educational, and philanthropic agencies. The elements of this skill and the ways to cultivate it are here discussed." Chapters on social insight, empathy, sociability, communication, co-operation, participation, organization, social counseling, guidance for creative achievement. Good bibliography. Should be helpful to FSA Home Management Supervisors. 260 St87S

THE FARM BLOC, by Wesley McCune. Doubleday Doran, 1943.

"What is the farm bloc? Who are its leaders? Does it really represent the farmers? Why is it after higher prices during a war? What is parity? This book answers all these questions and more." 281.12 M13

REDIRECTING FARM POLICY, by T. W. Schultz. Macmillan, 1943.

The author of this book believes that the great tug of war over parity prices has been a struggle over false issues and that it has done much harm by diverting our attention from the basic issue, namely, the task of managing our food supply, its production by farmers, and its distribution among consumers. He thinks that before we can make any headway in getting back to the policy decisions that matter, we must understand what prices are for; how prices function in the management of farm resources, incomes, and the distribution of food. The purpose of this book is to get the interested public, farm leaders, and others back to a consideration of real and significant policy issues. From the preface. 281.12 Sch82

Have you read THE FARMER CITIZEN AT WAR by Howard R. Tolley?

Forestry

FOREST ECONOMICS AND FINANCE, by P. L. Buttrick. Wiley, 1943.

The purposes of this text are: to present a unified discussion of the economic and financial aspects of American forestry based on modern economics, a knowledge of which is part of the professional equipment of every forester. To include considerable material dealing with the economic and financial nature of forest exploitation and of the forest industries. To consider the economic aspects of protection, recreational, and wildlife forestry, which are becoming important enough to merit more economic analysis than they have hitherto received. From the preface. 99.7 B98

TREE EXPERTS MANUAL, by R. R. Fenska. DeLaMare, 1943.

"A ready reference manual of directions, facts, and figures on the care of shade trees. Starts at the beginning--the parts of a tree and their functions, and the growth of trees--followed by details on watering, soils, transplanting, pruning, bracing and cabling, tree wound dressing, surgery, ..." 97.7 F36
